

Press Groups Back Editor of Star

EDITOR'S NOTE: Although neither the Arkansas Gazette nor the Arkansas Democrat have ever said a word editorially about the Star Editor's long federal court fight in behalf of freedom of press and speech the major publisher associations to which all three of us belong have consistently backed Washburn.

And so with his Arkadelphia speech of Oct. 19. On Oct. 25 the American Newspaper Publishers Association, New York, distributed to a selected list a reproduction of the Arkansas Democrat news report of that talk.

On Oct. 28 Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, Chattanooga, Tenn., distributed to its membership from the East Coast through New Mexico the following Business Bulletin:

This is a rambling story about the "never-say-die" attitude of an Arkansas editor who spent a small fortune in opposition to evils the Boggs Bill is designed to correct. This small-town small-newspaper editor is continuing his fight against the idea of having his right to free expression abridged through the device of tax sanctions. Our story starts with a little background on his case, winding up with details of a speech made by him recently.

Alex. Washburn, publisher of the Hope (Ark.) Star, valiantly opposed a tax cut ruling disallowing the business expense deduction of money spent by him in circulating a state-wide petition for a popular vote on an Arkansas tax act of 1955. The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in '56 denied his appeal from the tax court ruling and on March 20, 1961, the U.S. Supreme Court declined to review the case.

The income tax deduction in his case was disallowed because federal authorities said the money involved was used to try to influence legislation. Backing Mr. Washburn's fight at its 1960 convention, the Arkansas Press Association adopted a resolution opposing what it called censorship through federal taxation. APA said some Internal Revenue Service regulations, adopted without Congressional sanction, amount in the case of some newspapers to an abridgment of the right of free speech. APA asked that Congress remove from IRS authority the agency has assumed to decide arbitrarily whether a claimed deduction is a legitimate business expense.

After the Supreme Court declined review in his case, Mr. Washburn directed his energies towards support of the Boggs bill. (Advertising 1964) which would provide that an expense which otherwise qualifies as an ordinary and necessary trade or business expense will not be disallowed as a deduction for income tax purposes because it is expended or incurred to influence action by Congress or other legislative bodies with respect to legislative or constitutional proposals.

Mr. Washburn is still opposing censorship through federal taxation. In an Oct. 19 speech to the Arkadelphia Kiwanis Club, he said that now that the government is penalizing taxpayers citizens who attempt to influence legislation, the taxpayers citizens ought to penalize government by striking from the voting rolls all the recipients of welfare cash grants and surplus commodities.

In his speech, "Representation Without Taxation", on the occasion of National Newspaper Week, Mr. Washburn pointed out that the same government which denies a businessman the right to deduct from his income tax reasonable expenses incurred in "influencing legislation", loads up the welfare rolls with a controlled vote that enables the politicians to dominate legislation in defiance of the taxpayers.

He said that 21.1% of the population of his home county of Hempstead now receive either welfare cash grants or surplus commodities, and added that this figure probably holds true for all Arkansas. State-wide figures on recipients of surplus commodities were not available, but the comparison for welfare cash grants — 3.7% for Hempstead county's population, and 4.1% for the state's population, makes Hempstead an average county, he said.

The political record shows, he continued, that with a fifth of the population dependent upon public charity, politicians habitually coerce these captive voters to further their own ends in shaping legislation. Therefore, he said, if the recipients were removed from the voting rolls the politicians' grab for arbitrary power

Retirement, State Aid, School Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Teacher retirement and a set percentage of general revenues for public schools are the big topics at this year's Arkansas Education Association conference.

Both may be the subject of proposed constitutional amendments on the 1962 general election ballot. Hays Gibson of Conway, the new president of the AEA, said Thursday that his group hopes to get on the ballot by petition amendments to establish a teacher retirement system and set a percentage of the state's general revenues for the schools annually.

Teacher retirement has been a sore spot between the AEA and the Faulkner administration since the 1961 legislature, when they met head-on in a battle over how much the state should contribute.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus said five per cent, the AEA said 9.72 per cent. Faubus won. Gibson said Thursday he believes the AEA and the governor could reach an agreement on a retirement amendment.

Gibson, who also is chairman of the Teacher Retirement Board, became head of the AEA in October upon the death of the group's president, G. F. Castleberry of Newport. Gibson was vice president.

Mrs. Lou Couch, a second grade teacher in the Jonesboro schools, was elected president of the AEA's Department of Classroom Teachers Thursday.

Melba Lee Moore of Harrisburg was elected president of the Home Economics Division and Eugenia Rives of Marianna was elected president of the Guidance Teachers Division.

would be broken. The Hope editor said that when he was campaigning against the Arkansas 3% sales tax in 1958, which was on the general election ballot that year because of a state-wide petition he circulated, the Welfare Commissioners mailed out to welfare recipients along with their October checks a memorandum warning them their checks would be cut in half unless they supported the tax at the polls. "The Commissioner told the polls, that the inclusion of this threat in the welfare mailing had previously been approved by the federal authorities, from whom most of the money comes," Mr. Washburn continued.

"On Oct. 9, 1958, I wired Miss Kathryn Goodwin, acting director of the Bureau of Public Assistance, Washington, D. C., reporting what the Commissioner had done, and asking her for a federal statement. The following day she wired me this reply: 'We have requested a complete report on this situation. In the meantime we would prefer not to comment.'"

"All this was three years ago — and I never heard another word from the lady. For where elections are concerned the bureaucrats stick together — both state and federal."

"It is morally wrong to let people vote who not only pay no taxes but are wholly dependent on the politicians for their daily bread," Mr. Washburn declared. "A foreign enemy we can cope with, but unless we repair this damage within, then the republic will sink — as all free government has sunk in the past."

Fulbright Defends U. S. School Aid

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., billed as a friend of the teacher, told the Arkansas Education Association Thursday night that the U.S. House has killed Senate-approved four times since 1948.

He told a crowd of about 3,000 that he always has been behind federal aid for schools and he couldn't understand why anyone would oppose it.

"They speak of federal domination," he said, but the same persons are not afraid that the federal government will dominate the Arkansas River once it pays for developing it.

Fulbright said the teachers' lobby in Congress was excellent in the Senate. "But somebody has failed to persuade the House."

Hays Gibson of Conway, AEA president, introduced the senator as "one of America's greatest statesmen" and a friend of the teacher.

Fulbright said one of the nation's failures has been skimping on its rewards to teachers.

In an earlier news conference, the senator said he agreed with the Kennedy administration's pledge to work for open competition in the entire non-communist world. But he warned that America must work slowly toward this goal.

He said a free, competitive market without tariffs could not be achieved overnight, and the big problem is how to bring about such a market in an orderly manner without hurting home business.

Secondhand Rocket Does a Good Job

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP) — The Navy has launched a second-hand rocket.

The 17-foot Aerobee missile was fired from the sea off Point Mugu Thursday, just nine days after being used in a similar experiment. The rocket soared to 5,000 feet, then parachuted back to earth.

Supporters of the water-launch system say rockets could thus be launched almost any place in the sea, at remote distances from inhabited areas, and without the vast expense of fixed pads.

A Navy landing craft towed the Aerobee three miles to sea. It was fired as it floated horizontally in the ocean, then fired remotely by a radio signal.

Jack Cannon and his "Rocking Robins" will appear at the Youth Center this Friday night following the football game.

Mrs. Joe Gerald McMurtrey died in Alexandria, Va., on Nov. 1. She is survived by her husband, Joe Gerald McMurtrey, 67; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Barrington of Hot Springs; also, one sister, Mrs. McMurtrey is a native of Patmos.

Son Born to Margaret of Great Britain

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret gave birth to a son today and her husband said she was thrilled and delighted.

First to see the baby—after the doctors and nurses—was the father, the Earl of Snowdon, the former society photographer Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

Coming from the royal maternity suite in Clarence House, he exclaimed to a member of the household: "The princess and I are absolutely thrilled and delighted."

His son—fifth in line to the British throne—was born Viscount Linley.

The infant's weight was not announced immediately.

An official announcement said "mother and son are doing well."

The child was born in the room in Clarence House that Princess Margaret once used as a bedroom. She lived at the house, home of the queen mother, until her marriage May 6, 1960. Both she and her husband are 31.

Crowds cheered outside Clarence House. The Scots Guards bagpipe band marched by filling the air with music.

The news of the birth were relayed quickly to Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip. Congratulations began pouring in.

Lord Evans 58, one of the five medical men who attended the princess, broke the news to the father.

Before the baby's birth at 10:45 a.m. Tony sent Margaret an armload of red roses. He repeated the order after the birth.

The news was flashed to the far corners of the world. It even went out to jet airliners in flight. Four court physicians were in attendance at the birth: Sir John Peel, gynecologist to the queen; and the princess; anesthetist Vernon Hall, Sir John Weir and Lord Evans.

The princess apparently was in labor only a short time. Peel did not arrive at Clarence House until 8:15 a.m., two and a half hours before the birth.

Margaret's boy is fifth in line of succession to the British throne, behind Prince Charles, 13; Prince Andrew, who will be 2 in February; Princess Anne, 11; and Princess Margaret.

The baby automatically acquired the title of Viscount Linley, the secondary title given his father, when the queen made him Earl of Snowdon on Oct. 3. Had Armstrong-Jones not been raised to the peerage, the baby would have been a commoner with no title, a rare thing in British history for one so high in the line of succession to the throne.

JFK Beats Jersey Bush for Party

By JACK BELL

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — President Kennedy vowed New Jersey Democrats Thursday night with a Republican-needing stump speech aimed at helping underdog Richard J. Hughes in the state's race for governor.

Kennedy obviously enjoyed a two-hour respite from the burdens of the presidency as he put on the cap of party political leadership in an outdoor speech in the brisk November air to a rally of about 10,000 of the party faithful. This fell far short of the 50,000 through that Hughes' supporters had hoped to assemble.

The President flew to Trenton from New York City, where he gave a boost to Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner in the latter's race for reelection. Kennedy flew back to Washington after a brief reception with New Jersey Democratic leaders and a 10-minute speech for Hughes.

Kennedy's endorsement of Wagner in New York was:

"I want to take this opportunity to state with the utmost conviction my wholehearted support for the reelection of Mayor Robert F. Wagner. His experience in coping with the problems of this great city cannot be matched."

The endorsement was in a statement in the President's name, issued as his plane touched down at La Guardia Field.

The President's motorcade was deliberately routed through such important political areas as Harlem and the upper West Side of Manhattan as thousands watched from sidewalks.

Wagner — handicapped by a Democratic party split his fight for a third four-year term — denied that Kennedy's visit to the city was a political rescue mission.

Wagner's Republican opponent, State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, said Wagner "pushed the panic button" in getting Kennedy to go to New York to boost a sagging Democratic campaign.

In Trenton, Kennedy was in old campaign form as he told the cheering crowd that Hughes, opposed by Republican James P. Mitchell, had had "a long and uphill campaign."

He is credited with leading in a contest that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has said will have a direct bearing on Republican comeback efforts in Congress next year.

With a note of sarcasm in his voice, the bare-headed President, wearing a business suit and no

Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker Quits Army; Says 'Little Men' Ruined His Command

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, stripped of his divisional command, says he is quitting the Army because "I must be free from the power of little men who, in the name of my country, punish loyal service to it."

Walker's decision to leave the Army was announced Thursday in a statement supplied to a Senate Armed Services subcommittee. The 51-year-old West Point graduate defended what he saw as a duty to speak out on communism and he will pass up retirement pay of more than $12,000 a year.

Walker said he was taking leave of military duty "with a heavy heart" and would "find other means of serving my country in the time of her great need, in order to pursue the dedication of a lifetime."

Later, in San Antonio, Tex., where his mother lives, Walker, a bachelor, declined to say whether he expected to enter politics. He said he was not ready to say, adding: "When my plans do develop I suspect I may have some statements to make."

In his 11-page statement issued in Washington, Walker, who also had been rebuked by the Army, said his removal last April as commander of the 24th Division destroyed his 30-year career "in its usefulness to my country."

In taking away Walker's command and dealing him an official reprimand, the Pentagon had said Walker violated Defense Department regulations, made "inflammatory and derogatory statements" about former President Harry S. Truman and other prominent figures and had tried to influence his troops' voting the last congressional elections.

To support his contention of a right to speak out, Walker quoted

Washington Goal of Tour Saturday

As a part of its contribution to the Civil War Centennial Celebration, the Pulaski County Historical Society will make the first of several planned tours to points of interest in the State, Saturday, Nov. 4. This tour will be to Prairie De Ann, Ark. Village and Washington, the Confederate Capital of Arkansas. It will follow as nearly as practicable the route of General Frederick Steele's army in the spring of 1864 and take notes of points of interest connected with that expedition.

The first stop will be at Rockport, near Malvern, the site of Steele's camp the fourth night out from Little Rock. Here he erected his pontoon bridge and crossed the Ouachita River. The group will proceed down the west side of the river through Social Hill to Arkadelphia and from there to Spanaway, the present Hollywood, where Steele camped on the night of April 1 while debating the course he should follow from that point on south.

Between Hollywood and Antoinette, Steele turned south through Oklahoma, crossed the Little Missouri at Elkkins Ferry and went on to the north side of Prairie De Ann. The party will not follow his route through Oklahoma but will proceed to Antoinette and from there to Prescott. It will stop at the Gene Hale cattle ranch, three miles north of Prescott, the point at which Gen. Steele's army entered the Prairie. It will then tour the Prairie, noting points of interest in connection with the three days of skirmishing during which Steele's forces confronted General Sterling Price's Confederates. It will visit the scene of the "Battle of Moscow" the final encounter before the Union troops left the Prairie. The prairie occupies 25 or 30 square miles. Prescott is located near the center.

The group will have lunch at Arkla Village. From there it will proceed to Washington. About 30 will make the trip. H. C. Harnish is president of the group. B. A. Hardy is secretary-treasurer. J. H. Atkins will be in charge of the tour. Others making the trip are:

Mrs. Harnish, Mrs. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Cahler, Mrs. D. A. Matton, Mrs. Hazel Isgrig, Mrs. Emma Heitzel, Miss Pauline Heitzel, Miss Mildred Adams, Miss Velva Davis, Miss Effie Combs, Miss Mary Measler, Miss Marguerite Peil, Mrs. Dorothy Weelon Austin, Mrs. Norma Gold Beck, Mr. and Mrs. E. ## Mrs. Deal Is Speaker for Golden Age

Mrs. Margaret Deal, of Little Rock, Arkansas Department of Welfare, spoke informally at the Golden Age Club meeting at the Hope Youth Center, Thursday afternoon. Her field of work is the coordination of the MAA (Medical Aid for the Aged) Program for the state.

This is a totally new program, Mrs. Deal emphasized, just going into effect Sept. 1 of this year. Only people 65 and over are eligible under the MAA category. A person need not be a welfare aid recipient to be eligible for MAA; however, all applications are processed by the local Public Welfare offices. Other items of interest pointed out by Mrs. Deal were, persons with income of over $1,200 per year are not eligible; and additional $500 per year income is allowable for one dependent; the applicant's home must not have a market value of more than $7,500.

The speaker further pointed out the applicant has full freedom of choice of doctors, specialists, hospitals and of clinical services, provided these have working agreements with the administering agency. Also emphasized was the fact that medical, hospital and special care services administered by the Welfare Agency prior to Sept. 1 were in no way altered. The MAA program is wholly new and is to benefit only people who have reached their 65th birthday and meet the financial need requirements.

Mrs. Deal was introduced by club president Eugene Cox. The informal talk was interspersed frequently with questions from the members and guests were present. Approximately 25 were served by ladies of the organization.

Missile Has 21 Out of 23 Firing Score

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Flying a zig-zag course that demonstrated its ability to withstand violent wind gusts, a Pershing artillery missile has scored its 21st success in 23 test firings. The missile darted 250 miles down range Thursday night. Preliminary reports indicated the planned erratic maneuvers were built into the controls to test the ability of the inertial guidance system to return the missile to proper course.

Chrysler and Union Reach Agreement

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers Union reached agreement on a new three-year labor contract Thursday night averting a strike. The Chrysler pact brought peace between the UAW and all the automakers, except Studebaker-Packard. Three-year contracts previously had been negotiated by General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and American Motors Corp.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther said the Chrysler agreement, which came only 50 minutes before the company's 60,000 UAW-represented employees were to strike at midnight in support of demands, was essentially the same as that reached at GM and Ford.

Reuther and Chrysler Vice President John D. Leary announced verbal agreement and said they would initial the contract as soon as technicians completed writing language acceptable to both sides.

The union estimated that the Ford and GM contracts were worth more than 12 cents hourly in take-home pay over each year. They immediately added a minimum of five cents to gross pay, raising that to an average of $2.35 hourly for the industry's production workers.

This, plus company assumption of the full cost of hospital-medical insurance and other improvements in fringe benefits figured in the UAW estimate the contracts were worth more than 12 cents in take-home pay.

Six at-plant agreements, which will supplement Chrysler's national contract, still were to be worked out when Reuther and Leary announced their settlement, but union chiefs expressed confidence all could be settled quickly. Reuther said he anticipated no trouble.

Chrysler is the only member of the Big Three losing money this year. In the first nine months it lost $20.5 million. Studebaker-Packard, where new contract negotiations barely have begun, lost $10.3 million in the first three quarters.

Minor Damage in Auto Collision

An automobile collision between cars driven by Mrs. W. T. Moxley and Miss Betty Ratcliff Thursday morning at the intersection of North Washington Street and Avenue D resulted in minor damage to the Ratcliff car. City Officers Ward and Moses investigated, and charged Mrs. Moxley with hazardous driving.

The speaker's office in the Capitol at Washington is duplicated in this room of the Rayburn library at Bonham.

IN SAM RAYBURN'S HOME IN BONHAM, TEX., STANDS a monument to a man and to a nation, the Sam Rayburn Library. In addition to an exact duplicate of the office of the Speaker of the House in Washington, the library contains a crystal chandelier which hung in the White House in 1907 and a fireplace that was in the House of Representatives for 72 years. The imposing, 425,000 building also has reading rooms, thousands of papers and memorabilia from Rayburn's half century of public service, proceedings of Congress dating from 1774 and other historical documents. The library is open to the public daily at no charge. Rayburn's private home is a short distance west of the city.

fear many more bodies will be found," said Prime Minister George Price. "We are waiting for heavy equipment."

Raymond Yates, a waiter at the Fort George Hotel, told of the horror on hurricane night. "I swam nine blocks right through the streets," he said. "On the way I found two bodies. I put them on a high place, where it was dry, and continued to swim. I came across a woman with two children. I helped the mother to safety, and swam the children to a dry place."

Many still talked about the baby born in Belize Hospital while the hurricane howled at its peak. It was a boy, and therefore not named Hattie.

The U.S. aircraft carrier Antietam arrived off Belize with helicopters, doctors and more relief supplies. The carrier joined the

Burma Man to Be Named Head of UN

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U Thant of Burma will be named acting secretary-general of the United Nations today with a freethroat to choose his chief assistants.

The Soviets backed down after trying to specify the number of principal deputies the Burmese ambassador would appoint and also the areas from which they would be drawn. The United States made a similar retreat earlier this week.

The Security Council was called into a closed meeting this morning to recommend U Thant to fill out the term of Dag Hammarskjöld, who was killed in a plane crash in Africa Sept. 18.

The General Assembly was to meet this afternoon to elect U Thant. He will serve until April 1963.

U Thant, 52, a quiet but determined diplomat, broke the U.S.-Soviet deadlock on the issue of his principal advisers by telling the big powers he would name "a limited number." He refused to commit himself in advance to any particular number from any particular areas and told the Soviets and the Americans they could take it or leave it.

U Thant said he would also tell the assembly after his election that he would consult with his advisers on important questions and work with them "in a spirit of mutual understanding."

The Soviet Union favored seven chief deputies—an American, Soviet, Latin American, African, West European, East European and Asian. The United States, Britain and France favored five—excluding the East European and Asian.

On Wednesday the United States and Britain said they were willing to let U Thant decide—and France indicated approval. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin, president of the Security Council this month, gave in Thursday without explanation and called the Security Council to meet to name Hammarskjöld's successor.

topcoat, told the chilled crowd that Hughes had been downgraded too much.

"He has been written off on more front pages of more papers supporting other candidates than any candidate I know, with the possible exception of myself about 18 months ago," Kennedy said.

Kennedy avoided any reference to Eisenhower, who has campaigned personally for Mitchell, who was labor secretary in his Cabinet. But if Democrats felt the President thus left any kind of political void, they had reasonable assurance that it would be filled with a scheduled appearance in Newark, N.J., tonight by former President Harry S. Truman.

Truman had a midafternoon date to meet Gov. Robert B. Meyner and to visit the governor's mansion at Princeton. After a reception in South Orange, Truman was to attend a governor's ball in Newark's Armory honoring Meyner and Hughes.

The former president was scheduled to deliver a few words more political than those in which Kennedy was willing to indulge.

an address by George Washington to Army officers: "If men are to be precluded from offering their sentiments on a matter, which may involve the most serious and alarming consequences that can invite the consideration of mankind, reason is of no use to us; the freedom of speech may be taken away, and dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep to the slaughter."

Walker also said: "We are at war. We are infiltrated. We are losing that war every day. Are our hands tied, yours and mine? We need a substitute for defeat. If it is not within the power of this Congress to provide it—then the people of these United States are not truly represented."

"Failure to know the enemy, failure to understand him on all his fronts, failure to prepare completely to battle him to the ultimate in the defense of the United States, only gives him aid and comfort described in our Constitution as treason."

"There can be no co-existence of the battlefield."

The general, who directed federal troops used in the 1957 school integration dispute at Little Rock, Ark., said they were used "contrary to my personal wishes."

Walker said that federal marshals or merely military police units should have been employed "in that non-military issue."

"In recent years, special infiltrate groups have prevailed upon civilian leaders to employ our military forces on non-military adventures," he said.

Because of his disapproval of the "Operation Little Rock," Walker said he offered his resignation Aug. 4, 1959, but this "was denied by order of the Secretary of the Army."

The Army said it had received no request from Walker for retirement or resignation. In response to an inquiry, the Pentagon said a major general with 30 years service would draw retirement pay of $10,012.50 a month and would have additional fringe benefits.

The troop education and indoctrination program Walker sponsored while 24th Division commander in Germany led to his investigation and official rebuke. The case aroused considerable controversy, with some Congress members charging that Walker had been disciplined because he was a zealous anti-communist.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other top Pentagon officials denied this.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Moody of Nora Springs, Iowa, are visiting the John Randolph family.

Mrs. Pansy Williams and daughter, Terita of San Francisco, returned home Wednesday after a month's visit with Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Smith.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — How's your old "HQ" these days? Or maybe you didn't know you had one.

I certainly didn't know that I had one until the National Association of Gagwriters offered to test it for me.

Now that I know, I rather wish the association had left me in ignorance.

According to this form sheet I received, "HQ" stands for "humor quotient." The association has devised an "IQ test" that is supposed to evaluate your sense of humor in the way that an IQ test evaluates your intelligence.

The test has five parts, each worth 20 points. I can't say what my score is because I haven't gotten past part I.

Lists Ten Punchlines
In that part, the association lists what it describes as "10 punchlines to well-known jokes."

The person being tested chooses any five. Then he must (A) give the original jokes that the punchlines fit and (B) develop a quick "switch" using the same punchlines.

The punchlines are:
1. Because I saw the picture.
2. I'm not complaining, but look at the work they're turning out next door.
3. How did she know I was from Georgia?
7. Who's up there with Max?
8. How come you won't eat at Lindy's anymore?
9. I never said I was neat, did I?
10. Herman, don't get excited—I'll pay.

West Embarrassed

I'm a little embarrassed to admit this, but frankly I never heard any of those jokes. And, judging from the punchlines, I consider myself lucky in that regard.

The only one that looks even vaguely familiar is number three. But the way I heard it, the punchline was "How did she know I was in the furniture business?"

If you let yourself dwell on it, a thing like this can leave you severely frustrated. I keep looking at those punchlines and wondering what possibly could precede them that would make them funny.

I have even gone so far as to try to think up jokes to go with them. But the challenge is too great for my IQ.

Right now I am entertaining a suspicion that the test itself is just a gag. I have a feeling that the Gagwriters Association invented some jokeless punchlines as a joke on us test takers.

But if it's on the up and up, then the test clearly shows what my IQ aptitude is. I am a natural born straightman.

Reciprocal Trade Is a Tough Issue

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—A drive for re-enactment and broadening of the reciprocal trade program—one of the toughest tasks facing President Kennedy's legislative lieutenants—has been launched with the help of officials from three administrations.

Recommendations for "a giant step" away from remaining restrictions on international trade and a trade partnership with the Common Market, the potent new economic entity in Europe, came from Christian A. Herter, a secretary of state in the Eisenhower administration, and from William

L. Clayton, undersecretary of state for economic affairs in the Truman administration.

And the Kennedy administration spoke in much the same terms through George W. Ball, undersecretary of state for economic affairs.

Ball, in a speech Wednesday night for a trade convention in New York, called for "open commerce, positive trading" and assailed what he termed the defeatism of those who unduly feared competition with the Common Market.

The Reciprocal Trade Act comes up for renewal next year with sentiment for protecting U.S. industries against foreign competition apparently stronger than a most times during the past several decades.

Ball, whose speech was understood to have been approved by President Kennedy, also said the President should have authority to make "much broader and more ambitious bargains on behalf of United States industry" and that there must be a basis for an open trading world extending beyond the Common Market.

He also said the federal government should be empowered to help industries which cannot stand up to foreign competition. They should have special assistance in transferring both labor and capital into other fields, he said.

Among the broadening changes recommended by Herter and Clayton was specific authority for the President "to negotiate tariff reduction across the board in place of his present authority to negotiate item by item."

They called also for a trade partnership with the Common Market and leadership by the United States in creating a free worldwide economic community.

The Herter-Clayton report was submitted by invitation of a Senate-House Economic Subcommittee.

Here is a clear look at the new "fitted" silhouette. This is a very gentle fitting but it's definitely there. Black-and-white diagonal tweed is used for this costume (left) with indicated waistline. Tweed with a bloused top (center) and deeply pleated skirt has belted waistline. These are by Abe Schrader. Costume designed especially for the small woman (right) has printed wool challis blouse. This is from Mori Schrader; the fabric is wool jersey.

Chapter XXIX

Beecher spoke in a clear, carrying voice and he saw that Pusey was listening to him with a smug little smile. Yea and verily, Beecher thought the moment is at hand. He watched Pusey pull Ise's suitcase toward him and unsnap the latches. Pusey took something from the inner pocket of his jacket slipped it into her suitcase, then snapped the latches back into place.

"It's great to be in Tangier," Beecher said heartily. "We'll get freshened up at the hotel, then go to the Parade Bar for something tall and cool to drink." Beecher heard the door of the trunk close with a solid bang. He turned and looked steadily at Ise. "Be ready to do exactly what I tell you," he said.

Pusey opened the car door and slipped in behind the wheel. "I couldn't find 'em," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if that maid in Casablanca copped 'em while I was showering."

"You can't be too careful," Beecher said. "You should have taken them right into the bathroom with you. Well, we were making dinner plans. It would be a pleasure if you'd join us."

"No, I can't," Pusey said. "I got to get back to Gib. I'm supposed to confirm my car reservations before then. But thanks anyway."

"It's our loss," Beecher said. "We'd like to do something to show you how much we appreciate this lift. Do you have a business card on you?"

Pusey's hand moved toward his breast pocket, but half way there he changed direction, moved up his throat. He fingered his tie casually. "Well, I don't have one."

"He's gone for the police," Beecher said, and took her arm in a firm grip. "Don't look back, and don't act like you're in a hurry. We'll cross the street and find a cab."

They walked a block on the opposite side of the wide avenue, moving casually along the crowded sidewalk. A cab was waiting at the intersection.

The skipper of the Rosslen was a small and volatile Spaniard, with thick, oily black hair, and the face of an anxious priest. He paced the cabin of the ship, his rope-soled slippers twisting dryly on the glossy floor boards, and looked at Beecher and Ise with an expression blended of compassion and irritation and pity.

"I explained to him that this would be a difficult matter," he said, shaking his head impatiently. His name was Diego Najera, he had told them, and he had been working with the Irishman for three years. "This is not the time to be taking so much as one package of contraband cigarettes into open water."

"I'm sorry," Beecher said. "I didn't think of the spot I'd be putting you in."

"It is all right. We will try our best."

"There's one thing," Beecher said. He opened Ise's suitcase and removed Pusey's wallet. It was a flat leather case cut to the size of an American passport, with compartments for travelers' checks, and boat and plane tickets. He explained to Diego how he happened to have the wallet and asked him if he could arrange to have it sent over to the Blind Line Offices.

"Yes, I will do that," Diego said. "But may I ask why? After what you've told me, it doesn't seem very logical."

"Maybe a good turn will save his soul," Beecher said.

Trial Over, She Reopens Night Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Lillian

Reis, whose burglary trial ended in a hung jury last month, reopened her night club Wednesday night with herself as the star attraction in a floor show.

The shapely, 32-year-old former chorine, who hadn't danced in revues for about five years, did the Charleston, the jitterbug, the twist and the rumba.

"It was a wonderful success," she said in an interview. "All my old friends and some new ones were there. All the rooms were filled. The bar was far deep."

Miss Reis made only one reference to her trial: that she had decided to close the club until it was over. She was accused of masterminding a bizarre burglary at the home of John B. Rich, a Pottsville, Pa., coal magnate, then using some of the money to purchase her night club. Police claimed the 1959 burglary netted $478,000. No new trial date has been set.

This Lady's Hobby Is a Horse

By JOY MILLER

AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Some heiresses clope with husbands. Others devote their lives to high society. Judy Firestone rides horses.

While the socialites cluster in grandstand boxes at the current National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, the granddaughter of Harvey Firestone is out in the ring showing horses or competing in riding and jumping events. And she has won quite a few championships at shows around the country this year.

Judy will probably inherit a million or so of the rubber manufacturing family's fortune, but the fact hasn't given her airs. At 22, she's friendly, direct and down to earth.

"Someday I hope to be married, and that would be nice," she says. "But I really don't have an urge to set the world on fire in any way."

She never had a coming out party because she didn't want one. She buys her clothes in Akron, Ohio, shops; she went abroad for a second time only this year—and then to accompany her father on a business trip.

But Judy is not precisely underprivileged. Among other hobbies, horses like her 6-year-old mare (Princess Jack), and the young chestnut gelding named Eyewitness, the two she brought from home on the horse show circuit this year, take a bit of expensive coddling.

"I've been riding since I was 6," she says. "Daddy used to play polo and the family has always had horses."

Daddy—Raymond C. Firestone.

Dock Strike Looms for Hawaii

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP)—

International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, seeking a contract similar to the one in force on the West Coast, canceled an interim contract with Hawaii's longshore operators Thursday.

The union gave employers a 14-day cancellation notice, setting the stage for a possible strike after Nov. 16. It would be the first major dock strike here in 21 years.

Hawaii's 1,000 dockers authorized the union to call a strike if necessary to secure its demands. ILWU proposals, basically, entail the same gains recently won by West Coast longshoremen, including a merchandizing fund.

The ILWU wants two annual payments of $600,000 cash into the president of the family's tire and rubber company—was a top rated polo player during the late twenties and early thirties. Since he and Judy are quite close her affinity for horses comes naturally, friends say. At Lauray Farms, their home in Bath, Ohio, the two maintain a large stable.

Memphis Is Cool Toward Joint Board

MEMPHIS (AP)—The chairman of the Shelby County Commission says he wants to take a closer look before the county joins a plan to set up a Memphis-West Memphis, Ark., development committee.

About 90 officials from the two areas met in West Memphis last week and agreed to set up a joint commission to lay the groundwork for a proposed Metropolitan Area Planning Authority.

"I am willing to set up an advisory committee if that's what it is going to be," said Harsh Wednesday. "And I am in favor of cooperating for harmony in the two areas. But if it involves providing money for additional planning, I am against it."

Harsh, who was invited to but did not attend the West Memphis session, said he wants "to see what this new committee is supposed to do before we go into it."

Tree-Climber Is Fatally Shocked

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Christopher Murray, 10, told two friends Wednesday night he could climb higher than they could. Then he climbed a 35-foot pine tree but never came down.

Utility linemen removed his body from the tree. He apparently was electrocuted by a 2,400-volt wire within the reach of the tree.

There still are five or six million cypresses wandering across Europe, the Americas, Asia and Australia, resisting settlement.

fund. The industry has offered to maintain the fund at an annual maximum of $360,000.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Opens Grave of Wife's Past Indiscretion

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Can you help me undo the damage I've done to my marriage? My husband and I spent the first four years of it apart. Our jobs were in different states. The last 10 years were really happy.

The awful thing I did dates back 11 years ago when, lonely and miserable, I joined a bridge club sponsored by the city. Its director and I paired off in the various matches. Like myself he was married. Before I realized it, our relations became more than friendly. Resolve though I would to break with him I always went back. Cheating was easy because my husband only came home once a month.

But, unknown to me his schedule changed unexpectedly and he returned one night to find me with this man. I explained that we were discussing our bridge group. My husband believed this only because he loved and trusted me.

Soon after I dropped the other man. The last time we met was 10 years ago. I've spent these intervening years trying to atone for my sin by being a devoted wife and mother.

Now like a bolt out of the blue, my husband has learned the whole truth. My infidelity haunts him day and night. He neglects his wonderful job, refuses to live with me and has deliberately sought an out-of-town assignment.

Each day brings a frantic letter from him demanding to know why I did what I did. There is no reason except I was lonely, immature and an idiot. I reply that I'm not the same person today. Still he refuses to take me back on the theory that if I strayed once I will again. He need have no fear. I've learned my lesson.

I've begged him, if only for our children's sake (we have four) to forgive me. He says that even this bond is not strong enough.

Our children are the most important thing in my life. Why should they pay the penalty for my sin? My husband wants to have it out with the other man and his wife. He will just hurt the wife as he has been hurt.

I love him with all my heart, body and soul but, for the first time, he sees flaws in me. Still, I honestly believe that he will always love me and, if he would only let himself go, could be happy with me again. He insists that the other man will always be a barrier. This affair happened so long ago I've practically forgotten that man but my husband scoffs. What can I say or do? —Remorseful.

Dear Remorseful: Stop imploring your husband to forgive you. Write him one last letter and make sure he understands it is final unless he changes his mind.

Repeat that you are sorry but, what's done is done. Say you've tried your best these last 10 years to be a faithful wife and mother, because you love only him.

If he cares to bury the past, as you already have done, you will continue to do your best. Tell him, if he doesn't, you will go

Payoff Is Knocked Out by the AAA

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas high school football teams will have to wait at least one more year before resuming playoffs to decide who's best. The Arkansas Athletic Association voted 79 to 55 Thursday to table a proposal to resume playoffs this year. That killed the measure, and it was a surprising death. Most observers thought the AAA would pass the proposal, since it had been drafted by the Arkansas High School Coaches Association. But the AAA is controlled by administrators. One weakness was that no one could come up with a solid plan for redistricting the schools. The backers of the playoffs, which were abandoned several years ago, said they were disappointed by the action, but that they'd keep trying. In other action, the AAA voted against: Adding a fifth classification for football schools and moving the Big Nine Conference up to Class AAAA. Stop organized basketball practice after the state tournaments; Provide that all games must be played only on Friday and Saturday. Approved were proposals to: Fix starting dates for basketball games as Oct. 15 for non-football schools and the week after the last football game for others; Give the AAA authority to penalize schools for attempted inducement of athletes. Cut the maximum age of junior high athletes from 17 to 16; Hold all four state track meets the second weekend in May; Allow high school athletes to compete in summer track.

Orphans of Korea Are on Tour of U. S.

By HARRY JUPITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They shun beds and don't like candy. They're bright-eyed, immaculately scrubbed and behave themselves. They sing with the voices of angels. They're orphans, here to win your hearts. Six little boys and 26 girls, all between the ages of 8 and 12, are here from South Korea on a 40-city good-will tour of the United States and Canada. The children are members of the World Vision Korean Orphan Choir. They represent 13,000 orphans in South Korea and sing songs of gratitude and love. Wide eyes grow wider as the youngsters travel America by bus, happily fulfilling a twin mission: Thanking Americans and Canada.

TV Blamed Whatever It Does

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Poor old television just can't win. This year, all networks have tried to schedule their so-called "adult" shows in late evening time slots to avoid criticism about offending tender ears and susceptible young minds.

So now new complaints are rolling in—and quite logically—from grown-up viewers who can't sit up until all hours on week-day nights.

Just about everything stimulating in TV starts at 9 p.m., and more likely at 10. For millions of people who must be in their offices before 9 a.m. this means making a decision between a required full night of sleep and missing the show.

The 10 p.m. hour when NBC's "Sing Along with Mitch" turns up on Thursdays is resulting in loss of many viewers, particularly the dians who have contributed to 151 Korean institutions, and hoping for contributions to help construction of a 200-bed children's hospital near Seoul where free medical care will be given any orphan or needy child.

Traveling with them are a nurse, dietitian, tutor, and American and Korean chaperones. The aversion to candy and beds is reasonable. The children simply aren't familiar with such luxuries. For a treat, they enjoy pickled vegetables. For sleeping, each has brought his own sleeping bag.

Truck Line Cited on Labor Count

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The U.S. Labor Department asked federal district court Wednesday to require Arkansas Best Freight Systems, Inc., to comply with wage and hour laws. The complaint said Arkansas Best has paid some employees less than the legal minimum wage and has failed to pay time-and-one-half for work over 40 hours in a week.

Inter-Agency Claim Denied

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Claims Commission dismissed Wednesday a $1,250 claim filed against the Military Department by the State Police Department as the result of a traffic accident. H.M. Friday, commission clerk, said the attorney general's office had ruled that one state agency could not file a claim against another.

Conway Will Be Tough; It Always Is

By VINCE FOSTER
Hope Star Sports Writer

Tonight the Hope Bobcats play host to the Conway Wampus Cats with kickoff time of 8 o'clock. Conway may be really tough this week, as they meet Jonesboro, one of the top teams in the state, 19-16 last Friday.

This is the fourth contest between these two teams in a series, which Hope leads 2-1. In 1958 the Bobcats fought Conway to a 13-6 victory, and then came back in 1959 to upset them 14-7. Last season the Bobcats almost overcame all the odds, but were defeated 6-0 in a thriller. This has been a most exciting and enjoyable series between these two "Cat" teams.

Conway ended last season with a 9-1-2 record and despite some bad breaks, are striving for another successful season this year. They are sparked by veteran FB Don Heister on offense and co-captain Guy Jones as "monster man" on defense. Conway's heavy line contains Milburn, Ruple and Hallbrook. They slipped by Sealey 7-6, lost to Russellville 14-0, eased over Catholic High 20-0 and were whipped by Jacksonville 26-6 and by AAA power Malvern 16-0. Despite these losses, Conway will really be tough behind the power it is known for. However, Coach Rex Lovell admits he is worried about the Bobcats, since they moved twice inside the 10 yard line of Camden, now rated 2nd in the state.

The Bobcats, suffering from injuries again, are without the services of center Don Jones, who has a broken hand, and Billy Compton, who suffers with a broken wrist. T-B Roberts will start at end and Ricky Butler at center to fill these positions. One blessing, however, is the return of speedster David Porterfield, who has missed the last two weeks with an injured back. He and Tony McLarty, who has been holding down Porterfield's position superbly, will be the halfbacks, with Mac McLarty at QB and Charles Dudley at FB. However, a wet field may slow down these Bobcat specialists.

All are invited to join the Hope students and a large crowd from Conway to see this game which promises to be as exciting as in past years.

San Diego May Back Into Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dallas plays at Boston tonight in a game that might hand the Western Division championship of the American Football League to San Diego.

Dallas is second to San Diego but 4½ games back. If the Texans lose they will be five behind.

Sunday San Diego clashes with New York, one of the clubs tied for the lead in the Eastern Division. The Chargers, who are unbeaten for the season, then would have to take down New York to clinch the championship because they would be 5½ games ahead, with only five to play.

The Dallas-Boston game is a grudge affair since the Patriots lost into the Dallas backfield last Sunday and knocked off the Texans 13-17 on a last-second field goal by Gino Cappelletti.

Should San Diego beat New York, regardless of how the Dallas-Boston game comes out, there could be a new leader or leaders of the Eastern Division. Houston, the 1960 league champion, is only one-half game out of first place and the Oilers meet Denver at Denver Sunday.

A Houston victory plus a New York loss plus a Dallas victory over Boston would shove the Oilers into first place. But should Boston win, it could take over the lead in the event of a New York defeat and Houston would be second.

The only clubs that have nothing to worry about championship-wise get together at Buffalo Sunday. It will be Oakland, last in the Western Division, vs. Buffalo, last in the Western.

Cage Game Produces Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach Andy Phillip of the Chicago Majors prepared to protest today to the commissioner of the American Basketball League his team's slip-and-slide loss to the Washington Tapers Thursday night.

Professional basketball returned to Washington after an absence of more than 10 years as the Tapers edged Chicago 65-64 in a wild thriller.

With it returned a problem that pestered the old Caps of the National Basketball Association—moisture on the court when it is laid down over the ice rink in the Washington Coliseum on a warm, humid night.

Phillip had another complaint, to, on an official's call in the final nine seconds of the game. Tony Jackson had just popped two baskets in a row to put the Tapers ahead 65-64. Jackson was high scorer in the game with 17 points.

Washington took the ball out of bounds, but Chicago's Jackie Fitzpatrick stole it and fired in what appeared to be the winning basket. The official said Fitzpatrick walked with the ball and ruled the basket no good.

Phillip said "Fitzpatrick was sliding on the floor, not walking."

Boston Gives Hockey Sport a Real Jolt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's rookie-dominated Bruins, National Hockey League patsies in the early weeks of the season, are suddenly making themselves felt.

The Bruins, who failed to win and managed only one tie in their first eight games, knocked off league-leading Montreal 5-2 Thursday night.

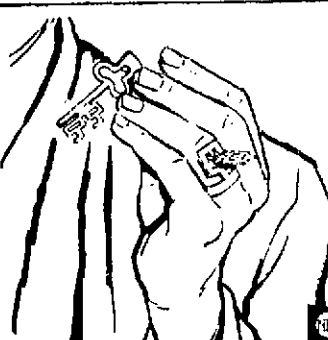

It was the second straight loss for the mighty Canadiens, who didn't lose in their first eight.

Despite the loss, the Canadiens retained their one-point hold on first place as runner-up New York was stopped in Detroit 1-0.

Andre Pronovost, once with the Canadiens, struck for two Boston goals as the Bruins blew a 2-0 first period lead, fell into a tie then rushed out in front again.

Detroit used a spectacular defense, good work by goalie Terry Sawchuk and Gordie Howe's goal to invert the Rangers' bid to regain the No. 1 spot.

2 Youngsters Lead Field at San Jose

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Two youngsters led 15 par busters into the second round of the $10,000 Almaden Open Golf Tournament today.

Larry Mowry and Johnny Lotz each shot 5-under-par 67s Thursday.

Mowry, 21, is assistant pro at Bonita, Calif. Lotz, 21, one of three amateurs among the sub-par holders, is a San Jose State College student.

Defending champ Charlie Siford of Los Angeles was one of five pros scoring 69, sharing third spot with Jim Ferrier, Jack O'Keefe, Chico Martinez and Bob McCallister.

The biggest names in the field, Bob Rosburg and Ken Venturi, were back in the bushes. Rosburg's par 72 got him into a 10-way tie for 16th place. Venturi, winner here in 1959, had 73.

Negro Issue Splits Grid Team Rating

By BOB VOGES

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — "As long as Southern schools won't schedule teams with Negro football players, you'll never know who is No. 1," said Michigan State Athletic Director Biggie Munn.

Munn spoke in answer to a complaint from a student spokesman for Mississippi that "Ole Miss" should be rated as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll.

MSU is tops and Mississippi second in the current rating. Both teams risk their standings Saturday—Michigan State against Minnesota and Mississippi against Louisiana State University.

Jimmie Robertson, editor of the Mississippi student newspaper at Oxford, Miss., wrote to the MSU student newspaper protesting "Ole Miss' No. 2 rating and the 'archaic thinking' on race relations which prevents the two teams from playing each other.

He said Mississippi would like to meet Michigan State but cannot "because we can't play any teams who have Negro players."

"If you can't meet them, you can't beat them," said Munn.

Michigan State has always refused to compete against any school that will not accept Negro athletes, Munn said.

"We will send our athletes against any school. But it has to be regardless of race, creed or color. Michigan State always has refused to compete with anyone who would not accept all our athletes—and this goes for housing or eating or transportation or anything else," Munn declared.

Hogs, A. & M. Both Hope Texas Loses

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas and Texas A&M, each hoping that unbeaten Texas will slip so they might at least have a chance to share in the Southwest Conference football title, clash Saturday before a capacity crowd of 33,000 in the Razorbacks' homecoming game at Fayetteville.

Both the Razorbacks and the Aggies have 2-1 conference records, while Texas, which tangles with Southern Methodist, is undefeated in three outings.

The Longhorns already have downed Arkansas 33-7. They meet the Aggies in their final game Nov. 23.

Texas A&M's lone conference defeat was a 15-14 setback by TCU, which Arkansas beat, 28-3, in 1959 and undisputed conference king last year, is a five-point favorite to take the Aggies and chase the powerful Longhorns down to the wire for the right to play in the Cotton Bowl.

After several days of rain the weather has turned cold and overcoats should be in style for the 2 p.m. (EST) kickoff.

Both teams are set to be at full strength except for Tim Langston, Arkansas' starting left end, who also missed last week's non-conference game against Northwest State College of Louisiana, because of a chronic shoulder injury. He will be replaced by sophomore Jim John.

The Aggies face the task of stopping a powerful offense which Coach Frank Broyles has built around a pair of seniors — halfback Lance Alworth and quarterback George McKimney. Alworth leads the Razorbacks in rushing (256 yards in 59 carries), punt returns, kickoff returns and has caught nine passes for 143 yards and two touchdowns. McKimney, with 18 completions in 37 passes, is tied with Alworth in scoring with three touchdowns each.

They rank second only to extrapoint expert Mickey Cissell, who has tallied 21 points.

Broyles makes no bones about calling the Porkers' opponent the best Aggie team in years. Usually weak overhead, the Texans have added a top-notch aerialist in John Erickson, a junior college transfer who had completed nearly 60 per cent of his passes. To go with against any school. But it has to be regardless of race, creed or color. ## Richest Turf Race Is to Be Run Today

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer
The world's richest horse race—the $302,365 Garden State—shapes up as virtually a match race between Donut King and Crimson Sultan at Garden State Park in Camden, N.J. Saturday, but you never can tell.

This golden gallop for 2-year-olds, the race that last year put Carry Back on the road to glory and riches, tops Saturday's thoroughbred racing program and will be televised nationally by Sports Network, Inc., from 4:30 to 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Donut King, a brown colt by Determiner out of Strayed by Bull Dog and owned by Californian Vern Mitchell, is the morning line favorite in the mile and one-sixteenth Garden State. Crimson Sultan, a chestnut colt by Spy Song-Papila, by Requiebro, is the close second choice. He is owned by Pete Salmen Sr.'s Crimson King Farm.

Ten other colts are expected to contest the issue, Green Ticket, Najin, In Force, Point Park, Pad Cell, Su Ka Wa, Decidedly, Slinson Beach, Obey and Pinset. The later two will race as an entry.

Of these Najin is the only one who has not raced in the East. The colt finished second to Royal Attack in the Durante Handicap at Bay Meadows (Calif.) last week and was flown East especially for Saturday's race.

The winner will get $181,419, $30,473 going to the runner-up, $30,326 to third and $15,118 to fourth.
